

BETA PHI MU OMICRON CHAPTER

International Library and Information Science Honor Society

Happy fall, Omicron members! We had an active and successful season, thanks to your participation and support! This issue of the newsletter is an online-only publication. Look for a print edition of the spring issue in your mailbox!

2011 OMICRON ANNUAL MEETING

Members, initiates, scholarship recipients, faculty members, and special guests attended the 2011 Omicron annual meeting at the Rutgers Club. Susan Conlon, librarian at the Princeton Public Library, offered the after dinner talk, “Change Is Good! Connection & Innovation in an On-demand World.”

Susan discussed her success in engaging the community by developing innovative takes on programs and services. She also shared her successful approach to harnessing social networking and online communications to drive in-person participation and attendance.

Please consider supporting this worthy effort with a donation when you receive the Spring membership renewal.

FALL LECTURE A SUCCESS!

On Wednesday, October 5, 2011, Marc Aronson, Ph.D. (YA author and lecturer for Rutgers University, School of Communication and Information) paired with Evan St. Lifer (Vice President, Digital Initiatives, Scholastic Library Publishing) to present the Beta Phi Mu Omicron Chapter 2011 Fall Lecture: “The Exploding Book and the Smiling Librarian.”

Marc Aronson shares his thoughts on the book...and why librarians are still smiling

Attendees were challenged to rethink the idea of “the book,” with particular focus children’s literature, the learning process, and how librarians can best embrace the ever-increasing combination of technology and the written word to best facilitate learning and service. Dr. Aronson defined librarians as “the digital weaver[s] bringing together strands in the digital world.” Evan St. Lifer stated that, “technology is not the end...technology is the means to an end. ...It can help us change lives. It can help us reform education as we know it.”

Evan St. Lifer discusses the role of technology in publishing, education, and libraries

By the end of the presentation, the collective understanding of books and teaching had been transformed to allow the limitless possibilities of their technical future room to grow, just as manuscript copiers once allowed the possibility that Guttenberg’s press could revitalize the way we pass on the written word.

This year’s lecture was co-sponsored by: Rutgers University Libraries; Department of Library and Information Science, School of Communication and Information; and Rutgers University School of Communication and Information Alumni Association.

Thank you to our wonderful speakers as well as our program partners, BΦM members, and attendees for an enlightening and enjoyable evening!
